

Question: For the Exam Web Page, please choose the best answer for this test:

Test ID: 11.B

Test Name: 3.1.2-part-language-defined

Test Condition: The human language for any content segment that differs from the default human language of the page can be programmatically determined.

Exam Web Page

- ☐ a. Fail - The human language for a content segment that differs from the default human language of the page CANNOT be programmatically determined.
- ☒ b. Does Not Apply - There is no differing language segment or it is a common phrase which does not require programmatic identification. ✓
- ☐ c. Fail - The language code for the content segment that differs does not need to be specified, because it is less than a paragraph.
- ☐ d. Pass - The human language for any content segment that differs from the default human language of the page can be programmatically determined.
- ☐ e. Not Tested - The language code for the content segment that differs is valid per ARIA.

https://training.section508testing.net/pluginfile.php/402205/mod_resource/content/3/pages/page4.html